Greg,
The CO has issued the verbal so we can launch when ever it looks good. I sent the lines to the flight crew and they are evaluating for any potential flight hazards. We are still thinking tomorrow is the best time and will make that call in the morning. The crew checked out the airfield Joe sent the link for and they think it has good enough conductivity but what the airfield calls high speed and what the service provider actually allows may be quite different. In any case it's a reasonable temporary base of operations. They are closing the field on Monday and Tuesday for re-striping (provided the weather holds). I will call you around 9-9:30 tomorrow morning to update you on the latest plans. Let me know if you need us to change anything or have questions.
